Hello Greenbank Farm Tenants, Volunteers and Friends,

A very busy week at the Farm (and the Wharf!)...

- The bees no longer reside in Barn A. It was quite the process, and the health of the hive is being evaluated while the bees are off site forgetting that they liked living in the wall of Barn A. We are hoping for their return soon to the Farm. Below is a photo of a portion of the hive that was in the wall of the Barn.
- Many weddings and events at the Farm - Saturday we have the Flea Market outdoors and on Sunday the Island Senior Services is having their 50th Anniversary Jubilee from 4-8pm.
- New security cameras were installed this week and a new remote app was added.
- The Whidbey Island Conservation District did a walk through of the farm for a couple of new projects we are working on with them.
- We have been spending a great deal of time on the noxious weed program. Tansy Ragwort is the weed of the week for us.
- Barn A is getting a new security upgrade and we are working with the tenants to improve the security system.
- New tenant signs are up at the Barn B kiosk and on Barn C. We are waiting for Dorcas's signs which are in the works.
- The sign at 525 is getting a refresh, new tenant signs, painting and new letters and a refresh on the barrels.
- We had a tree downed at the border of the marsh and Paul took care of it quickly.
- In case you didn't know Old Spots is now open for breakfast! 9am - 5pm.
- The heaters in Barn A have been inspected and we will be getting an estimate soon for repairs.

See you next week!
